

Roplast Industries manufactures custom polyethylene-based films and bags for retail, grocery, food packaging, and industrial markets. Our company's fully integrated 130,000 square foot manufacturing and corporate office facility is located in Oroville, California, 60 miles north of Sacramento in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Roplast extrudes a wide range of films using custom resin blends to meet our customers' exact requirements for strength, print quality, breathability, and durability. Monolayer and co-ex films are printed on multi-color, flexographic presses and converted into bags for shipment to customers throughout the U.S. and overseas. We also supply specialty films to other companies for further conversion into packaging and industrial products.

Roplast's mission is to provide high quality film and bags that fulfill the packaging needs of our many customers in an environmentally responsible manner. Our company's highly trained employees are dedicated to providing superior quality products, on-time deliveries and personalized sales service.
